Broad Revision of Gasoline Rations Is Effective Today

Value of B and C Stamps Cut From Three to Two Gallons by Order

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—A broad revision of rationing described as necessary to spread the gasoline supply more equitably today gave A-card motorists in the east more fuel by cutting down the amounts allowed drivers with the supplemental B and C cards.

The shakeup in ration card values effective last midnight applies everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains.

The Office of Price Administration (OPA) increased the ration of east coast A card holders from 1½ to 2 gallons weekly. B and C coupons were reduced to 2 gallons everywhere except in the Rockies and on the Pacific Coast.

OPA said last night the B and C reductions would accomplish "virtual equalization of rations through an area where supplies are short," and simultaneously align gasoline consumption with amounts available.

Chairman Lea (D-Calif) of the house interstate committee, indicated that the new setup would have no effect on a proposed investigation of gasoline rationing and distribution.

"Our chief aim," he said, "will be to clarify the supply situation, learn whether existing restrictions are justified and see what is being done to increase production of fuel."

To Avoid Grave Hardships

Hearings at which government officials and industry representatives will testify start in about two weeks, Lea said.

The B and C value changes, which OPA said were made to provide the increase for east coast A card holders, mean that in the midwest, southwest and southeast supplementary rations are cut from 3 to 2 gallons. In the northeastern states the reduction is from 2½ to 2 gallons.

OPA said civilian consumption in the midwest and southwest has been running about 75,000 barrels a day over allotments.

"Under these circumstances," OPA said, "there was no option but to cut civilians further. It is imperative that all water be squeezed out of supplemental rations."

OPA pledged, however, that supplementary rations would be granted in cases of grave hardship.

OPA stipulated that in the midwest and southwest one gallon of the three allowed A card holders must be used for occupational driving before the motorist is eligible for supplementary rations. East coast drivers were not bound by this regulation.

PLEAS MUST WAIT

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Motorists in 62 central and southern Illinois counties who want adjustment of their gasoline rations to meet essential driving needs, because of reduction of B and C coupon value to two gallons, must wait until Friday, October 15, to obtain action on such requests.

Carter Jenkins, Springfield OPA district director, said the 72 local war price and rationing boards in the district's 62 counties "will not be in a position to consider" such applications during the next two weeks.

"Positive proof must then be presented before the ration cut will be restored," Jenkins said in a statement.

The Army today opposed suggestions that it check the morals of wayward wives of servicemen before granting them dependency allowances.

Says System Would Bog

Brig. Gen. H. C. Gilbert, administrator of dependency benefits, asserted the whole system of dependency payments would bog down in administrative detail if the faithfulness of wives had to be determined. He appeared before the house military committee considering legislation to boost dependency allowances.

Rep. Short (R-Mo) charged "harlots are marrying these boys just so they'll get the money that goes to wives."

He said a hospital in his district was filled with venereal women, many of them drawing dependency allowances from men overseas.

General Gilbert said, however, it should not be the function of

Gangland's Double Cross, Fatal to 2 Mobsters, Unfolds

Chicago, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Gangland's double-cross—not new procedure in Chicago's gang history—cost the lives of two Chicago hoodlums within the last five months, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney disclosed today.

He said the murders of Danny Stanton and Martin (Sonny Boy) Quirk, stemming from the revival of big-sale gambling operations on the city's south side, had been solved by the confession of an ex-convict, a member of the gang once headed by the slain mobsters.

Courtney identified the ex-convict as James Egan, 30. The state's attorney said a second man under arrest, Anthony De Loro, also an ex-convict, had agreed Egan's confession was true, but declined to make a confession himself.

The confession, Courtney said, implicated several members of the gang, which he said was under control of a syndicate that has been a powerhouse in Chicago and Cook county since it was formed more than 20 years ago by Al Capone. The gang, Courtney said, was responsible for several murders as a result of gambling operations.

Seek Other Gangsters

State's attorney's police on the strength of the confession, today searched for several members of the gang once headed by Stanton, a former Capone mobster, and whose chief lieutenant, before his slaying last May 5, was Quirk.

But Quirk, Courtney disclosed, had ambitions to head the gang and plotted, with some members of the mob, to kill his boss. He described Stanton's slaying as a gang double cross and it came shortly after Stanton had ordered Quirk and another gangster to kill a rival gambler and a gangster. Instead, however, they killed Stanton.

With Stanton out of the way, Courtney related, Quirk was successful in his plot to take control of the gambling houses and handbooks that had been under Stanton's rule. But the 39-year-old Quirk's tenure as head of the south side establishments was short lived.

Six Men Implicated

Other members of the gang—holders from the Stanton mob—expressed dissatisfaction over Quirk's methods of operating, Courtney said, and decided to get rid of him. He said the confession of the ex-convict, employed as a guard in one of the gang's gambling houses, implicated six men in the killing of Quirk.

The one-time prohibition era beer runner was shot down as he neared his south side hotel last Sept. 18, and died two days later. His only hint as to his killers was that they were "the same men who killed Danny Stanton."

Stanton, who was 42, was killed in a south side tavern, but police had made no arrests in connection with the slaying until this week.

Administration Must Not Be Given Any More Blank Checks Says Landon

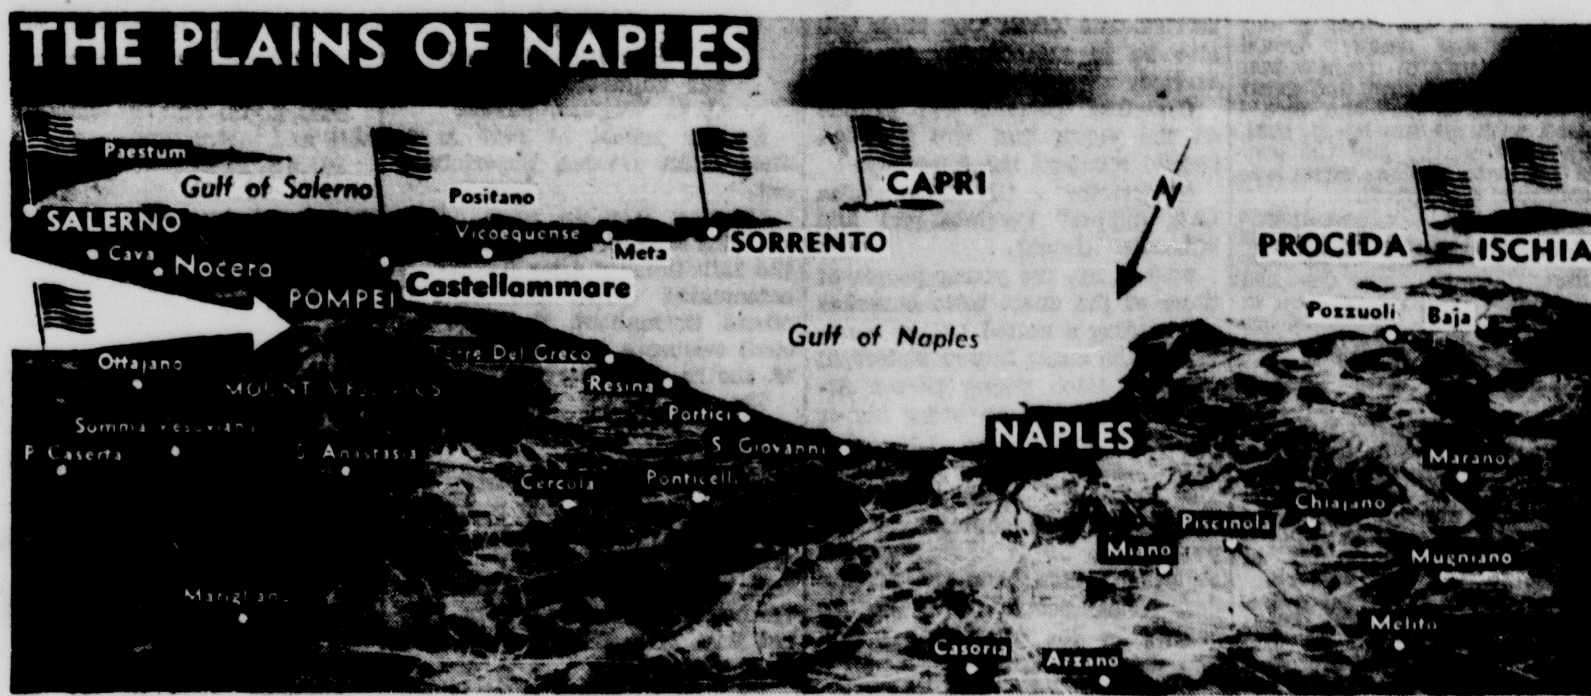

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Alf M. Landon said today he feared the mind of the American people is being conditioned for "the old fashioned balance of power alliance that will hang like a mill stone around the neck of generations yet unborn."

Opposing a "hush-hush policy" in discussing post-war alliances, the 1936 Republican presidential nominee asserted in a radio speech prepared for the Columbia Broadcasting System that plain talk would help clear the air of suspicion.

He said this country should use its power and influence to restrain imperialism.

"But how can we talk to Russia about the rights of small nations while we are talking about

Russians, Germans Hurl Great Forces Into Kiev Fighting

Possible Decisive Battle Rages With Unabated Violence

London, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The battle of Kiev, expected here to be one of the decisive struggles of the war, raged with unabated fury today with both Russians and Germans throwing tremendous forces of artillery, infantry and air power into the fight to achieve mastery of the Dnieper line.

The Germans were entrenched in the ancient city-fortress high on the western cliffs of the Dnieper river, while the pick of the Russian Ukrainian armies faced them across the 100-yard water barrier that separates Kiev from its eastern bank suburbs, already in soviet hands.

In the battle may rest the fate of the German armies in the great Dnieper bend south of Kiev and in the Crimea, as well as control of the Black sea.

The German communiqué, indicating that the Russians were attacking with unusual vigor to the south of the Dnieper bend, said soviet assaults were made with

U. S. Cadet Nurses' Corps Is Available

It was announced today that the Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital in Dixon is receiving applications for the U. S. Cadet Nurses Corps, in which young women can serve their country and prepare for a useful, lucrative profession, with all expenses and a monthly allowance paid by the government to any cadet who is a high school graduate and who will agree to make her services available in essential nursing for the duration of the war.

Distinctive uniforms will be provided the cadets which will indicate they are engaged in essential war service, and senior cadets may be assigned to government or civilian hospitals or public health services in this country to relieve existing shortages of graduate nurses. Applications should be made to the superintendent of nurses at the Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital before classes are filled.

Canadian Destroyer Is Reported Sunk on Duty With Convoy; 146 Lost

German Resumption of Submarine Warfare Indicated Today

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The Canadian destroyer St. Croix has been torpedoed and sunk on convoy duty with a loss of 146 men, Navy Minister Angus MacDonald announced today in a statement driving home the fact that German submarines again are preying on the North Atlantic supply routes.

MacDonald's statement gave no details concerning the loss of the St. Croix—one of 50 U. S. destroyers turned over to Great Britain before Pearl Harbor in exchange for naval bases—but it recalled Prime Minister Churchill's disclosure in his House of Commons war review Sept. 9 that an Atlantic convoy was at that moment under attack.

Up to that time, Churchill added, not a single allied ship had been sunk in the North Atlantic for four months—an assertion the Germans themselves admitted was true.

Only one member of the St. Croix's crew was rescued, MacDonald said. She was the fourth Canadian destroyer lost since the beginning of the war and the first of seven former U. S. vessels allotted to Canada to go down. Before leaving U. S. service she was known as the McCook.

In the absence of detailed information it was believed possible that the St. Croix might have been sunk in the action in which five Liberator bombers of the Royal Canadian Air Force were reported to have engaged six submarines in two days recently.

Renewal of the submarine campaign suggests the possibility that the nazis may have developed new tactics with which they hope to counter improved allied defenses.

Churchill's mention of the convoy in his Sept. 9 speech was followed by a German claim that 12 destroyers and nine merchant ships had been sunk from a west-bound convoy—a claim never confirmed by allied admissions of shipping losses.

NEW TYPE TORPEDO

An Eastern Canadian Port, Oct. 1.—(AP)—German submarines have returned to the battle of the Atlantic with a new type of torpedo—deadly and efficient—declared more than 100 survivors of sunken allied merchant vessels who were landed here earlier this week.

They were victims of the first big nazi U-boat attack reported in North Atlantic waters for nearly four months. Included were American, British and Norwegian seamen and a lone stow-away—an 18-year-old Negro girl whom a boatswain, also a Negro, had hoped to smuggle into the United States.

The seamen told of stabbing attacks by nazi "wolf packs", and of a pitched battle between the

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

As Herr Hitler struggles to halt the retreat of his armies and stabilize his line on the eastern front, one wonders whether he ever has tigerish nightmares of the awful retribution which might be visited on Germans by the millions of conquered peoples if there were a nazi military debacle.

We have a cogent reminder of this possibility—almost a certainty for some parts of Europe—in the word from Naples that the Germans, seeking revenge for the Italian surrender to the allies, have turned that fine city into a horror. Civilians, including women and children, are reported to have been machine-gunned to death in the streets, and much of the port has been wantonly destroyed.

That's mild, though, as compared with the wholesale massacres and other atrocities carried out in the many occupied countries. From the Baltic states westward to the English Channel and southward to the Mediterranean, millions of folk are waiting with blazing hatred for their chance at revenge.

And in Germany itself, there are some 12,000,000 Italians, Frenchmen, Belgians, Danes, Poles and other peoples who have been dragged there and put to work as slaves.

Yes, the fuhrer had better maintain his line! If we are to believe German broadcasts, that's what the all highest is determined to do, for he is said to have established headquarters on the Russian front and decreed that his generals shall not yield "another foot of ground" beyond the prepared nazi positions west of the Dnieper.

The climactic struggle which is going on along most of the thousand mile front, from Leningrad to the Sea of Azov, should give us an indication soon whether the Germans will be able to maintain themselves along the natural line of the Dnieper. Their alternative will be to resume their highly dangerous withdrawal into Poland.

Russia's reserve in manpower and material is an unknown quantity to the outside world. From time to time there have been un-

Cash Subsidies to 3,000,000 Dairymen Are Ordered Today

Restrictions Placed on Retail Consumption of Milk by WFA

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Cash subsidies to 3,000,000 dairymen and restrictions on retail consumption of dairy products in 13 heavily-populated areas were ordered today by the government in an effort to hold down prices and avoid rationing.

Producer spokesmen declared, however, their belief that the subsidy program, now in effect, would fail materially to boost dwindling supplies of milk and dairy products.

The subsidy plan contemplates the payment of federal benefits ranging from 25 to 50 cents per hundred pounds of whole milk to offset higher dairy feed costs. The War Food Administration (WFA) estimated the subsidy would cost between $60,000,000

Make Last Effort to Meet Bond Goal

As the Third War Loan drive throughout the nation drew to a successful finish, citizens of Dixon and Lee county began today to line up in the banks and post offices to redeem their pledges to buy extra War Bonds for the county's quota of almost $2,000,000 before the drive officially closes tomorrow.

Partial reports of War Bond purchases throughout the county indicated today that $1,291,457 of bonds have been bought toward meeting the county's quota of $1,940,788. Robert L. Bracken, county chairman, announced, from the state War Bond headquarters it was announced today that Illinois went over the top yesterday to become the eighth state in the union to reach its quota.

In Dixon, last minute efforts were being made by volunteer workers to obtain additional subscriptions to meet Dixon township's quota of $435,758. With approximately $100,000 yet to be subscribed, it was announced that several large subscriptions would have to be forthcoming if the township's quota is to be obtained before the campaign closes tomorrow.

Barges Evacuating Jap Troops from Kolombangara Island Sunk by Planes

(By The Associated Press)

Japanese evacuation of Kolombangara island in the central Solomons, where a 10,000-man garrison has been under violent air and artillery assault, was believed in progress today with the enemy withdrawing to the northern end of the 600-mile-long archipelago.

Dispatches from Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters said heavy Japanese barge traffic under cover of moonless nights indicated strongly that the enemy was trying to escape from a precarious if not hopeless situation.

American warplanes, striking to thwart the attempted evacuation, sank four Japanese barges loaded with troops and supplies, while

Allies Expected to Grant Recognition to Badoglio Regime

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The allies probably will recognize the government of Marshal Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel, and launch a campaign to rally the Italian people against the nazi-fostered fascist republic of Mussolini.

This was the belief expressed today by an official, in constant and close touch with the Italian situation, who added that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower already is negotiating with the Badoglio government as a co-belligerent—with the approval of the American, British and Russian governments.

The statements were made in reply to questions concerning a recent dispatch from the provisional Italian Capital that American and British soldiers were not enthusiastic toward the apparent determination of the Badoglio government to "force itself upon the United Nations as an ally."

This dispatch also disclosed that officers of AMG, arriving in southern Italy prepared to take over the military government of the country, resented a situation in which Italians continued to exercise civil power.

Has "Played Ball"

Such resentment on the part of AMG officers and the fighting men is understandable, it was said here, but it runs exactly counter to the attitude of the allied high command and the allied governments.

Nevertheless, it was added, the Badoglio government has "played ball" with the allies to an amazing extent—an extent that cannot as yet be fully revealed.

Quite apart from any controversy concerning the part the present king has played in Italy during the last few years, this official continued, he is the head of the Royal House of Savoy and represents a tradition that is stronger than most Americans realize. In the view of this source, such a tradition provides the advantage of legality and legitimacy to the government accepted by the allies.

And, it was pointed out, some opposite number must be established.

September Score of Fortresses Totalled

London, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Another powerful blow to the German air force was disclosed today in a monthly summary of U. S. Eighth Air Force operations listing more than 200 nazi planes knocked from the skies by Flying Fortresses alone in 10 September air raids.

The figure was exclusive of kills by swift Marauders and high-powered Thunderbolts—addition of which may almost double the number of German fighters destroyed and come close to equaling the previous month's toll when approximately 400 were shot down.

On the debit side, the Americans lost about 70 heavy bombers in September against an August toll of 114.

Gotham Pioneers

New York — Barbara Elliott and Anita Moore, two modern Worcester, Mass., girls now living here, sojourned New York's moving problem by applying New England pioneer ingenuity.

Unable to get a van during the Oct. 1 moving rush, they hired a horse and wagon. Despite jibes from passers-by and the fact that neither had ever before driven a horse, they got where they were going without a mishap—and without help.

Nazis Thrown Back on Rome Defenses 120 Miles to North

Capture of Third Greatest Port in Italy is Greatest Victory

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American Fifth Army today captured Naples, Italy's third greatest city, and threw the German defenders back upon the defenses of Rome, which is 120 airline miles to the north.

The American and British forces which clattered into Naples found the city of 825,000 empty of Germans, who for a week had engaged in an orgy of destruction and terrorism designed to burn and tear down every installation that would be of benefit to allied forces and to hamper Italian cooperation with the liberating armies.

The destruction was so great that it unquestionably will take many years to restore the city to its former beauty.

There was a question as to whether the Germans would elect to stand for battle at Rome, but if they did it was likely that the Eternal City was in for a bad time.

The special allied headquarters communique, announcing the fall of Naples, did not give the time at which allied troops seized the greatest city and port they have won on the continent of Europe.

"Troops of the Fifth army have entered Naples and the city is reported clear of Germans," said the two-line statement.

The entry into Naples—the greatest victory yet won by the allies in their 1943 offensive to smash Hitler's European fortress—was accomplished by smashing along the rim of Vesuvius against grim resistance of German rearguards who paid a high price to gain a few extra hours for their commanders to make arrangements for a line of defense farther north.

Face New Difficulties

Although German convoys were reported streaming back toward Rome, the Volturno river, some 20 miles north of Naples, still was considered the most likely line of the next major fighting.

But even before the Volturno is reached, a military spokesman pointed out, the Fifth Army is likely to run into the same kind of difficulty it encountered north of Salerno when strongly defended mountain passes had to be cleared foot by foot.

In pre-war days Naples ranked as Italy's greatest port next to Genoa, as well as a great manufacturing city.

Its extensive docks and waterfront presumably will be of great aid to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's quartermasters as soon as divers and engineers have cleared the clogged harbor channels and ship berths, straightened out the tangled communication lines and moved the debris from the streets.

Took 23 Days

Naples was the primary objective of General Eisenhower when the Fifth Army was landed on the beaches of Salerno Sept. 9, because it was necessary to obtain a large port from which to direct future operations. It took just 23 days to win the prize.

A little less than a month after Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army landed on the Italian toe Sept. 3, the allies thus were in possession of nearly a third of the Italian boot from which to press their growing offensive.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers, in a broadcast recorded by OWI, said naval experts at allied headquarters estimated the harbor of Naples "in its most important respects can be made serviceable in eight days from now.")

(An NBC broadcast from allied headquarters said the outer defenses of Naples were deserted by the Germans three days ago, and "it is possible that the city's inner defenses were deserted at the same time, though the Germans fought a stubborn rearguard action.")

(The German communiqué said the only important fighting in Italy yesterday was "south of Mount Vesuvius" and declared British tank thrusts were repulsed there.)

Torre Annunziata Falls

The powerful British and American columns which pushed into Naples reached their objective by taking Torre Annunziata, steel town on the shelf of land between

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Humanitarian Aim of Commandments Is Key to a Better World Tomorrow

Lesson Text: Matthew 5: 17-20; 19; 16-23; John 5: 39, 40

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
The aim of the lessons of this last quarter of the year is "to help the student to interpret the Ten Commandments in the light of the teaching of Jesus and to apply them in personal life and in social relationships."
Such interpretation is necessary, for though moral principles and the rules governing good relationships in social life do not change, the conditions and the problems to which they must be applied do change, and the form and manner of their application must be adapted accordingly.
Sabbath observance, for instance, in a great modern city must be different in form, if not in spirit, from Sabbath observance in a small rural community or in a primitive conditions like those in which the Israelites were situated when the Commandments were given.
To attempt to apply the same rule with literal exactness in modern city would involve great hardship and suffering, and it was just this that the Commandments were designed to prevent.
The whole purpose of the Commandments was humanitarian, and this ought to be the purpose of all laws and moral codes. But laws and rules tend to become crystallized apart from their purpose; outward observance tends to become of more importance than what the law or the rule was designed to prevent or to achieve.
Jesus saw this, and with His accustomed realism He gave the Commandments positive expression, those in which the Israelites were doing certain things; the Commandments could be fulfilled only in loving one's neighbor as one's self. Thus it was that the young man who had observed all the Commandments from his youth up still lacked one thing. His heart was set on his great possessions, for when the test came he loved them more than he loved God or his fellowmen.

How many of us, even if our possessions are small, would emerge successfully from a test like that? Yet the first and great Commandment is that one should love God with all the heart, soul, mind and strength; and the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.
Examine the Commandments of the Mosaic Law in the light of this over-all teaching, and note how essentially they are designed to establish that sort of love in family and social relationships. Could one love his neighbor and seek to steal from him, or do anything mean or spiteful against him?
The principles laid down in the Ten Commandments, as interpreted by Jesus, emphasizing the interpretation of the Jewish law itself—for Jesus did not invent the command to love one's neighbor—are at the very foundation of prosperity, justice, and welfare.
We shall never have real peace, or a true democracy, until these principles are recognized and practiced. It is futile to talk of a better tomorrow for the world unless men are going to be better themselves in practicing justice with one another, and in studying ways of mutual helpfulness.
True life, for the individual and for society, is in seeking God's way; and God's way is the way of love to man.

300 At Meeting in Interest of Christian Education in Dixon

Christian Education history was made in Dixon last evening in the first Parent-Teacher meeting under the auspices of the Dixon Council of Christian Education. A group of 300 young people and adults crowded the basement auditorium of the Loveland Community House for this most interesting gathering. The meeting was presided over by the president of the Council, Rev. Joseph C. Mason.

Features of the program included inspiring singing of a number of the familiar church hymns by the entire group, led by the Rev. Floyd Blewfield; a splendid musical program by an orchestra from the Methodist church under the direction of Richard Belcher; a presentation by the Rev. W. J. Martz, chairman of the Leadership Training committee of the Council, of information regarding the teacher-training school to be conducted in Dixon this fall and winter. The climax of the meeting was reached in the challenging lecture by the Rev. Clarence H. Benson of the Evangelical Teacher Training Association on the theme, "The Church Must Teach or Perish." The Rev. M. Benson pointed out the fact that the greatest need in the land at the present hour is an efficient program of Christian Education. He said that the program of Christian Education depended for its success upon effective Christian teaching in the home, school, and the church.

Eighty-two of those present last evening registered for the course in teacher training. The time and place of the first class will be announced at a later date.

The evening closed with a reception for the teachers of Bible in the public and Sunday schools of our city. Coffee and doughnuts were supplied and served by the ladies of the various churches co-operating in the Council.
C. J. McLean, chairman of the committee which arranged this program, is to be congratulated on doing a splendid job.

MIS-FORTUNE

New York—Mrs. Rose Stein deftly fanned out her cards on a tea room table, looked at them studiously, then predicted her customer would soon get a pay raise.
The customer, who had paid $1 for the prediction, was Police-woman Mollie P. McDermott, and had other things on her mind besides getting a raise.
Mrs. Stein was summoned to court—and paid $10 fine on a charge of fortune telling.

A Thought for Today

They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.—Titus 1:16.

Not he who scorns the Saviour's yoke
Should wear his cross upon the heart.
—Schiller.

What About Frankfurter?

It will be remembered that Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, resigned recently because of mutual conviction between him and Secretary Hull that the department was not large enough for both. One of them had to go—either Hull or Welles, so Welles departed. Generally, Mr. Welles has been regarded as a trifle less conservative than Mr. Hull.

When it came time to appoint a new under-secretary, the president made what is regarded by many as a perfectly astonishing, if not astounding choice. He selected Edward R. Stettinius, formerly chairman of United States Steel and one-time big shot in General Motors. Not only that, but the Stettinius parent had been a partner of J. P. Morgan.

Judging by his former connections and his father's connection with Mr. Morgan, on whose lap a midget once sat as Morgan was being crucified by the new deal, Mr. Stettinius is totally unfit to associate with the new dealers. That is, not on an ideological basis. To the radicals whom Mr. Roosevelt has coddled for years, the selection most probably is odorous.

For several days prior to the Stettinius appointment, it had been said that Mr. Roosevelt was making a rapid zig to the right, after a long series of zigzags to the left. The Stettinius business was regarded as another omen that the general direction is toward the right.

Has Mr. Roosevelt experienced a change in ideology, or has he become convinced that radicalism is a flop, or is he getting his fences mended pending the next election?

It will be remembered that when Mr. Roosevelt wanted a new associate justice of the United States supreme court, he selected one Hugo Black, who was not regarded as a money changer, an economic royalist, or as one of those who sat in well-stocked clubs. Another time, Mr. Roosevelt appointed one Felix Frankfurter, who had spent years hatching Harvard graduates described as the Happy Hot Dog boys, who have added nothing to the luster of ancient Harvard as a conservative nesting place. Frankfurter and Black are on the supreme court for life. The administration is loaded to the gills with Happy Hot Dogs. If Stettinius is a conservative, he is likely to be lonely.

The appointment of a few conservatives to positions in which general policy is not made can not pull the wool over the people's eyes. Not while Harry Hopkins continues to be the president's chief adviser, and not while Secretary Ickes proclaims the nation is worth 12 trillion dollars—(so what's the use of worrying about a few hundred billions?)—and not while the influence of John Maynard Keynes is overly strong in this country. And especially not while the president continues to coddle three other men who have been convicted to the satisfaction of the house of un-American philosophies.

If this country needs a change at all, it needs it at the top.

Just about the time the New Deal bureaucrats were feeling themselves to be on firmer ground, congress had to return.

Why Taxes Are High

The Washingtonian was telling over lunch, why he was on leave looking for a job in private industry, though he now is receiving from a government agency the highest salary he ever attained.

"I like the work," he said, "and I think it is of major importance. It is being carried out efficiently, intelligently and without politics. I like my associates and my superior. If I find another job, probably it will involve a reduction in my income."

"But here's the difficulty: I haven't anything to do. Circumstances have changed since I went to Washington a year ago, and our agency now can carry out its duties with less manpower. Much of the time I sit around with nothing to do—and I'm not old enough, yet, to enjoy that."

"Last summer I tried to resign. I told my superior why—that I didn't have enough work to keep me busy. He was sympathetic. But he didn't want me to leave. So he offered me an assistant."

We laughed. It seemed very funny. Offering an assistant in order to retain the services of a man whose only complaint was lack of work.

"It isn't as funny as you think," retorted the Washingtonian. "There was logic in the offer. What he really was doing was offering me a raise if I would stay."

"Under civil service regulations, the only way I can get a raise is by bossing my subordinates. One more helper, and my salary could be increased. That is why I was offered an assistant."

"But why," we asked, "is your superior so anxious to keep you, if there isn't enough work? Is it on the basis of personal friendship?"

"No," said the Washingtonian. "We are friendly enough, but not that pally. I suppose he wants me to stay for the same reason that he offered me an assistant—because his status, too, depends upon the number of subordinates he has. If I left, he would have to find somebody in my place or he would drop a step in the hierarchy, which might have financial implications for him."

There are many reasons why taxes are high. Among them is the cost of the war. But multiply this incident many thousands of times, and there is another reason.

War Songs

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has risen to the defense of song writers against the general feeling that this war has not produced anything to equal "Over There," the World War I favorite.

As candidates for high honors, in a trade publication advertisement, Ascap offers "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," "Coming In on a Wing and a Prayer," "Johnny Doughboy Found a Rose in Ireland." Any prediction as to how long any of these will survive would be foolhardy, but we feel during this morning, so let's prophesy for the record that only "Praise the Lord" has any real chance of becoming the "Over There" of this war.

Ascap does offer one thought that must not be overlooked. "Over There" did not have to undergo the damning repetition with which the radio now kills popular songs. If "Praise the Lord" had not been done to death on the air, its chances of permanency would be many times as great.

Queen Bess

Apparently England some day is to have another Good Queen Bess. King George, though still a relatively young man, is looking ahead to the day when his throne must pass on. So he has asked for a revision of the law to permit Princess Elizabeth to be included among the councillors of state when she becomes 18.

Presumably the correspondent of the New York Times was writing with sly humor when, after telling of the king's request, he added an apparently irrelevant paragraph: "It was ascertained that the king does not expect to leave England soon." No abdication?

One boon that President Roosevelt could give to the people would be to compel Harry Hopkins, Dave Niles and others of the Fourth Term engineers within the White House to stand for election. Voting would be fun then.

Fair Enough

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States maritime commission, remarked, amid cheers, to the recent convention of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of the CIO that he was now persuaded that union leaders were smarter men than the representatives of industrial management, having greater patience and endurance in long-drawn-out negotiations.

This is either a silly or a pernicious statement from a man in Land's position because it was uttered for purposes of ingratiating and, I have no doubt, to atone for Land's earlier crack that union organizers interfering with war production "ought to be shot at sunrise" and because, as Land very well knows, it not only omits but tends to belittle the existence of the other side of the story.

The important phase that Land didn't discuss is well known to all industrial executives and all union bosses and is the result of a studied political policy of the new deal government. The truth is that union bosses have nothing else to do but promote their own personal interests and their union interest and have no responsibility under law. The industrial executive, on the other hand, has business problems, priorities, contracts, taxes, renegotiation, production, and many laws and regulations to occupy his time and consume his energies. In one case of which I have personal knowledge, a huge manufacturing company in the middle west found itself snarled in negotiations with five different unions at one time, some of them presenting competitive jurisdictional claims, and was compelled to maintain on a permanent basis living quarters in Washington for a number of important executives who were constantly being dragged away from their vital production jobs in the war plants to sit through conferences with the unioners and the Labor Relations and War Labor Boards in which the unions deliberately stalled. The employers wanted to sign contracts and get on with the job but the unions had plenty of time and they raised petty issues for no other purpose than to gum up the works and wear down the management.

The new smart unioner, developed and encouraged by the new deal, is an expert shyster, schooled in a repertoire of time-wasting and, in some cases, the company which is being harassed and victimized in these negotiations is compelled to pay the wages of men who do no productive work whatever in the shops but occupy themselves solely with the promotion of grievances calling for negotiations and sometimes leading to deliberate show-downs. This happened at a Brewster Aeronautical plant when the management refused to fire a guard enrolled in the Coast Guard Reserve who had reported a union steward for loafing one hour and 15 minutes in the washroom. The guard was slugged next day by three men and required hospital treatment and the union dismissed him from its rolls and called on the company to can him. The company refused but gave in after five days of retarded production and thus another of Admiral Land's "smart" unioners had won another victory over a company but at the expense of American soldiers and sailors fighting in a war.

Moreover, it is a union policy nowadays to require mutual agreement between the company and the union in the preparation of lists of men for whom deferment is to be asked, and this means that the smart union official is given the right to write his own deferment merely by refusing to okay the list unless his own name and the names of his friends are on it. I have no knowledge of any actual case of the selling of deferment by this means, but knowing the character of many unioners I would not put it past them to shake down an eligible slacker for a hundred or a thousand dollars, a very obvious business opportunity. Joe Curran's Communist-front maritime union regularly holds its own court-martial and condemns sailors for "anti-union" activity which includes anti-Communist activity and lese majesty to Curran, dismissing them from union membership, which means that they are then reported to their draft boards as no longer eligible for deferment as merchant seamen. The temptation to a corrupt unioner to threaten a rank-and-file sailor with charges calling for a union trial and probable dismissal and certification to his home board as an eligible draftee need not be dwelt upon.

The unioner is, of course, "smart" as Admiral Land says but unlike the management man, he may be a criminal with a record or living under a false name as many of them do and yet the law is all on his side and stacked against the company and the fighting men who need the factory production and against the people of the United States who today are buying bonds to pay

They'll Do It Every Time

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Washington—On its face, the promised appointment of General Marshall seems to forecast a new offensive on the European front.

Even the White House attitude encourages this impression. The president sharply criticized the recent public controversy over the matter in the house and the press, and on the radio, on the grounds that it was a military matter.

Certainly the existing military matters in Italy and in the air bombing campaign are not such as to require Marshall's transfer. Consequently, the general assumption must be that a new offensive is imminent.

The Austin-Wadsworth compulsory labor draft bill is dying on the vine. The only one who could possibly revive it and put it through is Roosevelt. His persistent silence has discouraged the backers of the legislation. They now know they cannot get the measure out of either house, or the senate military affairs committee even as far as the senate floor for public discussion.

The only administration authorities who forcefully have advocated the measure are War Secretary Stimson and his assistant, Patterson. Congressmen have heard rumors that at one time the entire Roosevelt cabinet wanted the bill, but apparently not now.

It is obvious that the strength of opposition from both labor and industry has made it a dangerous measure politically.

Indeed, the Republican authors of the legislation have grounds to suspect that the administration has left them holding the bag too long.

The rigid labor draft regulation which it would impose upon all men from 18 to 65 and women from 18 to 50 would make them legally if not practically slaves of the state as far as assignment of work is concerned. It follows a totalitarian theme which is away from the latest trend of Washington events and popular opinion.

The labor assignment system instituted by Bernard Baruch on the Pacific coast has furnished a more democratic way of meeting the problem. It has some of the elements of compulsion in the establishment of priorities for work and the restriction of hiring to government employment agencies, but the plan is confined to a local emergency basis and the compulsion has been voluntarily accepted by those involved.

It is at any rate a two-to-one bet that the national over-all compulsion of the Austin-Wadsworth bill is dead until after the next elections, at least. The Baruch idea may be extended to other emergency localities.

The senate naval affairs committee killed the provision permitting WAVES to go overseas, largely on the private recommendation of some naval officers.

The committee members made some personal investigations during their recent vacation travels, and brought back splendid reports. They found many girls with unusual education and exceptional background in that service.

However, to transport them overseas would involve complications of housing which probably for such delays and idling.

The law and all procedure encourage the "smart" unioner to promote grievances and keep negotiating endlessly in progress, but Land could honestly have said in justice to the management men that in their futile struggles against such activities they are more likely patriotic and conscientious than dumb.

would cost more than their transportation would be worth.

The idea of sending them over was supposed to have had the endorsement of Mrs. Roosevelt, but even so, some of the naval officers remained skeptical.

He told the women that Illinois recruits in the drive would be trained as a separate unit, the companies carrying to their training center the state flag, and each girl accepted for WACS service will wear a distinctive Illinois insignia as a shoulder patch.

Other speakers at the meeting were Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurnand, commander of the Sixth Service Command; Maj. Doris Epperson, WACS staff director; and Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Alert Farmer Will Secure Fertilizer Early as Possible

Chicago—The old adage that "the early bird gets the worm" has a modern application in the present fertilizer situation, according to a statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"In this instance," the statement points out, "it will be the early purchaser who will be sure of getting his needed fertilizer supplies for wheat seeding and other crop operations this fall."

"Formerly the business of ordering and shipping fertilizer was concentrated into a rush period of three to four weeks. Many farmers waited until the last minute to figure out their plant food needs. Then they contacted their dealer who had a truckman go to the factory and then deliver the fertilizer out in the field."

"Now wartime labor shortages and transportation jams have made all this impossible. The production and shipping schedules of fertilizer factories are hampered by a scarcity of workers. Truck and rail systems are already carrying a peak load of traffic. The supply situation is further complicated by additional lend-lease requirements which are cutting down the amount of fertilizer materials available to farmers."

"In view of these conditions it is obvious that fertilizer tonnage for Midwestern farms must move in the fore part of the season. Otherwise labor shortages at the factories and the clogged condition of transportation lines will create a bottleneck that cannot be broken."

"The forward-looking farmer who acts promptly will be certain of getting his supplies. The man who waits until the last minute faces the likelihood of getting no fertilizer at all."

"Farmers generally can cooperate by determining right now what crops they are going to plant this fall, how much fertilizer they will need, and then seeing their agent. Information on how to fill out applications for fertilizer and data concerning government regulations covering the analysis of plant food available and the quantities that may be applied, are in the hands of county agents, agronomists at state experiment stations and local fertilizer distributors. All these are glad to assist farmers in solving their problems and obtaining their plant food supplies in time for vital fall crop operations."

Surviving were the widow, the former Mrs. May Fletcher Van Wormer, and a sister, Mrs. Loyal A. Bigelow of suburban Evanston.

Errand for Q-74

By Malcolm Taylor

COPYRIGHT, 1943, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Capt. Raymond Imhof, Q-74, U. S. Army intelligence, has been assigned to follow a lead-trail of Enzeli, Q-46, leading to certain important information which Enzeli has been unable to bring out of Germany. RAF Pilot Officer Danforth is to fly Imhof for a parachute drop over enemy territory. Danforth is inexplicably delayed before the take-off but dashes up at the last minute.

COBLENZ

CHAPTER V

IN less time than seemed possible the human projectile shot in again, not so slender now in complete flying gear.

The two men bolted out into the night, jumped into a car and raced to the plane that waited, all warmed up, with propeller idling. They had been too busy to talk much, but when they were well away and climbing fast Imhof asked curiously:

"What held you up?"

"Motorbike broke down. Deserted heath. Couldn't get to a phone or find a car. Terribly sorry," came the laconic explanation.

Around 3000 feet, they broke through the ceiling of cloud into the light of a quarter moon, now sinking low in the west. The plane continued in its long climb.

On approaching 10,000 feet, Imhof was almost startled by hearing a voice in his earphones. In the long silence, he had nearly forgotten that he was not alone.

"Better connect up your oxygen pipe," said Danforth.

Presently the pilot pointed to where, through a large gap in the flooring of cloud, two shadowy masses of differing darkness met each other in a long looping line.

"The coast," Imhof heard.

In a moment more they were over the sea and the shoreline slipped underneath.

"Keep your eyes open for a bomber below," came through the intercom.

They circled, no longer climbing, but Imhof failed to see a single plane.

"There's one!" said Danforth suddenly, pointing.

*****

"A LANCASTER," the pilot identified. "She's still climbing. We'll go with her."

"Good thing for us they know we're not Nazis," said Imhof.

"They know what we're hanging round for," said Danforth. "All the Essex stationed bombers in their wave were informed about us. I'll signal them. Check your belt."

Imhof checked and the plane flipped over, corkscrewed through a roll, straightened out, then corkscrewed through another in the reverse direction. The Lancaster waggled her wings decorously and greetings thus exchanged, both planes flew on, preserving a sort of unorthodox formation.

The flight proceeded uneventfully for some half an hour more.

Then—

"Nazi night fighter off port bow, lower down," Danforth announced.

"Hope they see him on the Lanc."

Alert and tense, Imhof watched to see what the Nazi would do. He was coming up fast.

"They see him! Look!" Danforth cried.

Imhof looked and saw the Lancaster flip over, sheer away and power-dive into a cloud below.

"Nice work," Danforth chuckled. Instinctively, the Nazi nosed down to go after the bomber, then, realizing he had lost her, quickly nosed up again to attack the observation plane.

To Imhof's surprise, Danforth swung straight in the direction of the enemy, putting the plane into a steep climb.

The Nazi started to spiral up in steep, climbing turns that would bring him up in time to close with his quarry. Just as he swung into the third ring of the spiral and headed away at right angles to the observation plane's line of flight, Danforth acted.

"Hang on to your hat," he laughed, and put the plane into a screaming power-dive behind the Nazi's tail.

The surprised Nazi could only swerve, describing a considerable arc. Then he lined up again and plummeted in pursuit. But before he could get in range the observation plane knifed into a cloud.

*****

DANFORTH marked time by flying around inside the cloud a while, then shot out into the clear. Imhof studied the sky on all sides, but saw no sign of the Nazi.

"I suppose we've lost the Lancaster for good," Imhof said regretfully.

"Oh, definitely," was the unworried reply. "But we'll get on all right without her. I took a compass reading of her course immediately I spotted that Jerry."

Imhof felt somewhat uneasy. "I hope you're a good navigator," was all he said.

"Shan't need to be," was the cheerful comeback. "If we come within 50 miles of Coblenz, we'll see it. You're forgetting the fire."

Suddenly to starboard a jagged starfish of flame sprang into being, tore a ragged fiery hole in the darkness and vanished. Immediately after a second starfish raved out just underneath.

Ack-ack.

The plane shot upward, as if blown higher by an explosion, then fell off to one side in a sort of sideslip and dive combined.

Then, as the starfishes multiplied, began a mad, jinking progress, the plane climbing and diving, leaping and falling away, zig-zagging and weaving and twisting.

The pilot was throwing her about to keep the ground gunners from taking sure aim.

After some 15 minutes of this drunken progress, he pointed to a faint patch of reddish glow ahead.

In a comparatively short time Imhof and Danforth were circling, high over Coblenz, watching the bombers going into action lower down.

TODAY on the HOME FRONT
by JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE
Washington, Oct. 1—(AP)—Vice President Henry Wallace, asked to explain the reason behind his many speeches about the "common man", said today that: "He is trying to stimulate thinking that will make for a lasting peace through giving the common man everywhere a better living which would include better wages, food and housing."
"I have felt", he said in an interview, "that a great many things were apt to be passed up too long if we are going to end wars. For that reason I have made these speeches. They needed to be made and I will continue to make them."
"There are millions of folks in this country who feel the way I do."
Asked if he thought his talks were having any effect, Wallace said: "Yes, I have been pleased by the reaction seen in the mail I receive and the folks I have met in different cities. There has been a good reaction in foreign countries, too, principally in England and Latin America."
He said he believes that the "so-called right wing trend in this country has aroused Latin American fears of a revival of dollar diplomacy" and that it is important "to the future to put these fears of Yankee imperialism at rest."
A modern democracy must respect the "individuality and potentialities of the common man", he said in his book-lined senate office, "but those potentialities haven't yet been realized in any country."
There has been criticism of the vice president for his thinking and utterances, ranking from something like "star-gazer" to descriptions less complimentary, but of his critics he said: "I have always felt they were valuable. They have been to me. By arousing discussion, they give you a power to get across your ideas that sometimes you may not possess yourself."
But criticism is valuable only so long as it is "fair", he said, expressing "resentment against distortions" of his words and thinking.
The vice president, who said he writes his speeches in longhand or dictates them to a secretary, called this the "century of the

The belief that synthetic tires can be produced in sufficient quantities to afford substantial relief over the next several months has faded. To quote a statement issued recently by Mr. Jeffers, "The very few experimental synthetic tires now being made and scheduled to be made during the next few months are just a drop in the bucket compared with the need. I can see no immediate relief. Only those drivers whose work is most essential to the winning of the war can count on new replacement tires for at least the next twelve months."
Scrap piles are being thoroughly culled to obtain every tire that shows any possibilities of further use after temporary or permanent repair. These "emergency tires" are now being rationed, and the OPA is hopeful that if all stocks of these tires now in junkyards and auto graveyards can be made available for some additional use, the year-end shortage may be held to perhaps 6,000,000 tires.

Reich Adopts Another Method to Get Slave Labor, Madrid States
Madrid, Oct. 1—(AP)—Italian reports to Madrid said today that widespread arrests among Italian factory workers by Nazi military authorities indicate that the reich has adopted another method of obtaining workers for German industry.
The arrests supposedly are made for "obstructive activity", but after a few days in prison camps special trains and trucks move the prisoners northward, presumably into Germany to work these reports said.
New York, Sept. 30—(AP)—The German-controlled Italian radio, in a broadcast reported by the Office of War Information, declared today the Nazis would take "pitiless" reprisals against the people of Naples if they persisted "in getting in the way in the fight against the Anglo-Americans".

Rationing News

Automobile owners in Lee county were warned today by O. H. Martin, chairman of the County War Price and Rationing Board, that the civilian tire situation is still acute despite the production of approximately 5,000,000 new synthetic tires.
According to statements by William Jeffers and his successor Col. Dewey, Chairman Martin said that only a total of 17,000,000 tires, both new and used, will be available for all of 1943. During the first eight months of 1943 the OPA, in accordance with quotas established by the Office of the Rubber Director, has issued certificates for approximately 15,900,000 passenger car tires. At the present rate of demand, it is conservatively estimated that a total of 25,000,000 tires will be needed this year to provide for all essential cars.
If the Rubber Director's estimate of a 17,000,000 tire supply is correct, a shortage of 8,000,000 tires is indicated by the end of this year. Acute shortages have already developed in most sections of the country. A shortage of the proportions indicated carries a threat of serious disruption of war worker transportation. To avoid such a condition, greater

When paper grew scarce during the Revolution, he ordered his oldest tents turned into newsprint so that his army might follow the struggle for liberty in the other colonies. His forces drew on their own scanty stores of white paper to insure the printing of war news.
It was worth while.
The "new power" — the newspaper — soon made itself felt. The Revolutionary leaders all respected the press and defended its freedom. The Massachusetts House of Representatives in an historic declaration affirmed that "The Liberty of the Press is a great Bulwark of the Liberty of the People."
Today, more than 150 years later, a free press still is America's "great Bulwark" and is helping win America's greatest war!

Touhy Is Convicted of Aiding Convict Escape

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 1 (AP)—Roger (Terrible) Touhy, the one time Chicago gangster who is serving a 99-year prison sentence, cried in Circuit court yesterday when a jury convicted him and two other convicts of aiding another convict to escape in the sensational prison break at Stateville penitentiary last Oct. 9.

Touhy, William Stewart and Matthew Nelson, all face a probable sentence of 199 years. The three were among the seven convicts who escaped and were charged with helping a fellow convict, Edward Darlak, flee the prison. Darlak is serving a term of 199 years, Stewart and Nelson 20 years.

Counsel for Touhy, who is serving sentence for the kidnapping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, made a motion for arrested judgment and a new trial. He was given ten days to file the motion and sentence was withheld by Judge Roscoe E. South.

The state charged Touhy, Stewart and Nelson aided Darlak to escape by planning the break and in aiding in the physical action of affecting the escape.

The jury deliberated about four hours.

Illinois Over Top in Third War Loan Drive

Chicago, Oct. 1 (AP)—Illinois is over the top in the Third War Loan drive with sales totaling $953,300,000.

That amount is 103 per cent of the $921,000,000 quota, Harold H. Swift, state chairman of the Illinois war finance committee, said.

Illinois became the eighth state to surpass its bond goal when it reached the new total yesterday.

"Special praise," Swift said, "is due DeKalb county, which has not only hit 111 per cent of its total Third War Loan quota, but has also topped its E bond quota of $981,000."

He added that Pulaski county has purchased 237 per cent of its $160,000 quota, sales there aggregating $381,000.

Other counties over the top, and their percentages, are: Alexander 130, Boone 106, Cass 131, Cook 102, Edgar 116, Hardin 142, Jefferson 100, Kankakee 147, Lake 103, McHenry 100, McLean 140, Madison 180, Perry 106, Rock Island 104, St. Clair 107, Sangamon 106, Wabash 121, Wayne 105, and Williamson 142.

Crew of British Admiral's Launch Saves Lt. Shaheen

Lt. John Shaheen of Tampico was apologizing today, says a special dispatch from Salerno, Italy, for wearing an enlisted man's dungarees instead of his regular uniform. But he had a good reason, for some 88 mm. German shells destroyed his luggage.

The dispatch says that Shaheen and his comrades, including Army Captain (Jumping Joe) Savoldi of Benton Harbor, Mich., former Notre Dame football star; Lt. (j. g.) Harry Ringling North of Sarasota, Fla., a member of the circus family, and Ensign Anson Burke of Enfield, Conn., a Penn halfback a few years ago, had just landed on a concrete mole when the German guns opened up from the hills.

The shells exploded around them, one only 20 feet away, and their gear went up in smoke from the shrapnel.

"We were in a tough spot," Shaheen said, "and there was no way of reaching our little assault boat. But just then a British rear admiral in a motor launch saw our position and ordered his crew to our rescue."

"We piled into the launch and the admiral skillfully directed it in a zigzag course to avoid the shell fire and bring us safely to a larger vessel. I never was so glad to see gold braid in my life as I was to see that admiral."

Hitler Is Reported at Russian Front; Orders Generals to Hold Line

Stockholm, Oct. 1 (AP)—Broadcasts of the so-called German "freedom" station Atlantic as heard in Sweden reported today that Adolf Hitler had established headquarters on the Russian front and told his generals that "not another foot of ground" beyond the Dnieper must be yielded.

"From now on the Dnieper will be the natural front to separate both armies," the fuhrer was quoted as saying. "This front will stand. The winter positions have been ready for a long time and are well built and can be regarded as impossible to take."

He was said to have demanded that his generals immediately eliminate "The Stalingrad psychosis," adding: "here I stand and here I will stay."

Purchase of Land for U. I. Airport Approved

Chicago, Oct. 1 (AP)—The purchase of 520 acres of land southeast of Chicago, Ill., for the University of Illinois airport, was approved yesterday by the executive committee of the school's board of trustees.

Park Livingston, board president, signed the contracts for purchase of the land. Newton C. Farr, negotiator of the contracts, said that he expected to close contracts for 223 additional acres, necessary for completing the project, within a few days.

Judge John H. Armstrong of Chicago represented owners of the land—August M. Koss, Walter C. Fisher, Maude G. Fisher, Louis Roy Stout and Zelma Z. Stout.

Camp McCoy, near Sparta, Wis., will be shifted to Fort Sheridan which has been under command of Army ground forces.

undersea raiders and allied naval and air units that continued for three days.

This was the same battle in which the Canadian destroyer St. Croix was lost with 146 of her 147-man crew, and probably the one in which the U-boats surfaced to slug it out with long-range Canadian Liberator bombers.

The survivors did not know the total losses of the convoy and escorts, but they knew four ships of their convoy were sunk and at least one of a slow convoy preceding theirs.

They said the slow convoy first ran into the submarine pack on Sunday, Sept. 19, and that the battle lasted off and on through Wednesday.

GERMAN CLAIMS

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—The German news agency, DNE, declared in a broadcast today that the German navy sank 18 allied merchantmen totaling 113,200 tons during September.

U-boats accounted for 88,700 tons of this figure, the broadcast said.

In the same period, it was claimed, 17 allied destroyers were sunk and three destroyers and a cruiser were damaged.

There was no confirmation of these figures from allied sources.

Another Berlin broadcast said a battleship, three cruisers, three destroyers and 37 allied merchantmen totaling 202,500 tons were sunk by the German air force in the Mediterranean during September.

The shipping claimed sunk by the U-boats was the lowest for any month this year.

the bay and Vesuvius, late Wednesday.

Torre Annunziata is nine miles south of Naples.

They then had to fight a cautious battle with German rear-guards manning anti-tank guns in orchards and other places of concealment, root out hundreds of mines and overcome numerous obstacles and demolitions.

While these forces battled toward the great pall of smoke that had hung over Naples for days, other American and British forces advanced to the east of the city and along the Adriatic.

Americans spread forward for 10 miles and captured Avellino, 39 miles due east of Naples in an encircling movement which poised a threat to the German retreat to the Volturno.

British Move Swiftly

Meanwhile, the British Eighth Army was officially reported making a rapid advance northward from Foggia and Manfredonia along the Adriatic, although today's communique made only a cryptic statement that the progress was "according to plan."

Foggia, center of a whole chain of airfields, is only 165 miles from Rome and the Foggia plain extends northward to within 140 miles of the capital city.

That the Germans were faced with the necessity of making a stand against the flanking movement was indicated, however, by reports that Montgomery was now in contact with strong rear-guards of the enemy. Previously he had been meeting negligible opposition.

Beyond Naples itself lay a number of large airfields within a radius of 15 to 25 miles and it appeared likely that several of these would fall into allied hands shortly.

City Presents Sad Sight

Refugees received within the allied lines for several days had reported that the Germans, stung to fury by Italy's capitulation, were inflicting an unendurable terror on the city's population.

The beautiful city, once described by the poetic phrase, "See Naples and die" was reported to have presented a sad sight to the first allied patrols which entered its limits.

Many of the 300 churches of the 27-century-old port had been demolished or damaged by allied bombings or during the time when the Germans vented their rage during their iron-fisted military rule.

The communique said that allied medium bombers attacked the area of Capua, 19 miles north of Naples along the Volturno river, and Benevento, 31 miles north-east.

Yesterday wound up a record month for the North African Air Force.

More than 15,000 tons of bombs were unloaded on objectives in Italy during September, it was announced.

Great quantities of equipment, including hundreds of packed parachutes and dozens of plane engines, as well as the wreckage of scores of planes, were left behind by the Germans when they evacuated the 13 airports at Foggia, an official statement said.

The Germans had flown away some of their serviceable planes and burned those left behind.

The effectiveness of allied air attacks at Foggia was disclosed when the freight yards were found completely blocked, with more than 400 yards of rail lines littered with burned and twisted cars and locomotives. The city's streets also were blocked by tons of fallen masonry and craters.

TO SAVE ROME, POPE

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today the objective of allied forces in Italy was to free Rome, the Vatican and the Pope, much in the manner of a crusade, while at the same time avoiding all possible destruction.

Roosevelt showed some skepticism at a press-radio conference about news reports that the Germans might make their stand on the line of Rome, now that the allies have entered Naples. He said he did not think even General Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean, knew where the next stand would be.

He said three minutes before the news conference opened he had received a flash from the general saying that allied troops had entered Naples.

The president asserted there was one thing he could say—that naturally the advance is going to continue and that every effort is being made by the allies to prevent damage to Rome and the Vatican. They are doing everything possible to prevent active fighting leading to destruction in Rome.

Nazis Occupy Rome

It is clear the Germans occupy Rome and that the Vatican is essentially surrounded, the president said. German troops are in the colonnade around St. Peter's Square, and while he did not wish to say that the Holy Father was in a state of siege, he pointed out that complete freedom can not be had if troops are in your front yard and inspect every one coming in and going out.

The allied march northward looks toward freeing Rome, the Vatican and the Pope, the chief executive said, and it is hoped Rome's monuments and shrines and historical spots can be restored without destruction. But, in the last analysis, it will be the Germans and not ourselves who decide that, he emphasized.

Asked whether he thought it possible the German armies might attempt to induce destruction by the allies, he said that was perfectly possible.

Representatives of major producer cooperatives told a senate agriculture subcommittee yesterday they believed that milk supplies would continue to drop and that general rationing might be necessary unless the administration allowed OPA retail price ceilings to go up about a cent per quart.

Other Capital News

House Committee—Still occupied with servicemen's dependency legislation—was trying to decide what to do about wayward wives and the families of conscientious objectors. As far as allotments for erring wives is concerned, the Army wants some other agency to pass judgment. There have been several proposals made—none decided upon—to take care of the families of objectors.

And the question of deferring fathers from the draft any longer merely because they are fathers, became academic as the dad draft officially got under way. Debate continued in the senate, but the Wheeler no-father draft bill appeared doomed.

On the other side of the Capitol, the senate was looking at the future, rather than the present war and draft situation. Senators returning from a 40,000-mile trip to the war zones emphasized that the real problem before the nation is the enunciation of a broad postwar foreign policy.

A declaration by congress, they said, would "have a very wholesome effect".

military or government agencies to check on the conduct of the wives. He told the committee that congressional consideration of the subject of wayward wives would have a bad effect on men already overseas.

Although "most men have an inherent faith in their wives," he said, the fact that congress is considering such matters might cause every soldier "to become concerned" about his own wife.

Gerald Monsman, representing a group of organizations that give free legal advice to servicemen, told the committee that complaints reaching his association are from soldiers and sailors who protest that their wives aren't entitled to financial support.

In many cases, he said, money is deducted from a serviceman's pay for a wife from whom he is separated. He suggested that draft boards or some other agency be authorized to review such cases.

TOKENS OUTLINED

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration (OPA) today outlined its plans for use of the ration tokens which will be put in circulation early in 1944.

The tokens to be used as change for processed foods and meats—fat stamps, will be made of plastic or glass, will be slightly larger than a nickel and will be inscribed to designate the foods for which they are good.

Bids on the manufacture of an initial supply of 900,000,000 of the discs—400,000,000 blue and 500,000,000 red—will be opened here Monday.

Each token will have a value of one point and will have no expiration date. The blue ones will be used as change for processed food stamps and the red for red meats stamps.

All red and blue stamps will be assigned a uniform value of 10 points when the tokens are placed in use, OPA said. Thus a customer making an eight-point blue stamp purchase would receive two blue tokens as change, to be used at any time.

Through the use of tokens and uniform stamp values, OPA expects war ration book 4, scheduled for distribution late this month, to last approximately two years.

The 15,000 participating ration banks will furnish dealers with their token supplies.

Allies Expected

lished to overcome the appeal of Mussolini. An allied military government, however just and considerate, could have little appeal to the Italian people who may be wondering, in the still German-occupied sections, whether to accept the new fascist republic—but a government established around the legitimate royal house, allied with the British and Americans in a war against Germany—such a government would have a strong following.

The War Today

official reports of a huge reservoir of trained forces ready for just such an emergency as now has arrived. The Germans, too, say the Reds are employing fresh reserves. However, time is our surest source of the truth in this matter.

There's also another missing clue in our study, and that's just how much damage the Germans have suffered in their rapid retreat. All we know now is that the Moscow reports show the Nazi losses in men and material have been heavy.

As a matter of fact, unless the Germans are weaker than they appear, one would expect the war of extreme movement to pause for a bit of a breather. It's one of the wonders of the world conflict that the Russians should have been able to maintain their offensive so long as they have. Their present drive started July 12, and since then they have recaptured close to 100,000 square miles of territory. Their skill and endurance have been astounding. They long ago must have outraced their chief communications, and for some time they have been struggling through the terrible lakes of mud produced by the fall rains.

Under normal circumstances the offensive should have paused half a dozen times—but not with the enemy in full retreat. Now the Russians may take the opportunity to strengthen communications and bring up supplies and fresh troops.

Farm Tractors Can Be Used in Transport

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1 (AP)—Illinois farmers may transport agricultural products on state highways by means of farm tractors without state motor vehicle licenses, Attorney General George F. Barrett held today.

In an official opinion requested by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, Barrett made this interpretation of a recent legislative amendment to the state motor vehicle act. The original act allowed unlicensed tractors only to cross highways or use them for travel from one farm to another.

Barrett said only "farm tractors" come within the effect of his interpretation. He defended them as tractors "used primarily in agricultural pursuits."

Although the communique said "full success" was gained by the Germans in defending their line there, and that 140 out of 250 Soviet tanks were destroyed, a Berlin broadcast said "the great battle which has been raging for the past five days in the Zaporozhe-Melitopol region has now attained its culminating point."

He said civilians may be turkeyless on Thanksgiving, but there should be enough birds left, after Army and Navy orders are filled, to supply the nation's Christmas dinner demands.

DeKalb Man Seeking Release from Menard

Sycamore, Ill., Oct. 1 (AP)—A habeas corpus petition by which Andrew Ondich, 45, of DeKalb seeks his freedom from the Illinois Security Hospital at Menard, was scheduled for a hearing here tomorrow before Circuit Judge Harry W. McEwen.</

Football Menu for Tomorrow Features Outstanding Games

Several Contests Are of Nationwide Interest; Items on Calendar

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—An appetizer of two games tonight will prepare fans for the second Saturday football feast of the season tomorrow, when a well-filled program of major contests will go far toward deciding the question of which teams belong in the top brackets.

Swarthmore meets Temple and Kansas invades Denver in tonight's contests, which are but a prelude to such games as Northwestern-Michigan, Notre Dame-Georgia Tech, Texas-Southwestern, Duke-North Carolina Navy and Penn-Yale.

The Northwestern-Michigan battle at Evanston and the Georgia Tech-Notre Dame clash at South Bend hold the spotlight from a national standpoint.

In other midwestern games Illinois invades Purdue, Minnesota enters a green and untied Nebraska eleven, and Iowa and Wisconsin mix at Iowa City for a game which might result any way.

Army Favored
Army, safely past Villanova, generally is favored over Colgate at West Point, and the same is true of Navy in its game with Cornell at Baltimore. Yale and Penn met at Philadelphia and Holy Cross takes on Brown at Worcester in other major eastern battles.

A southwestern game which will be watched with interest matches Texas and Southwestern. The Southwestern squad, rumored a powerhouse, includes many players from Coach D. X. Bible's Texas team as a result of the Navy and Marine college training program.

Several important skirmishes are scheduled in the south, with the Duke-North Carolina preflight contest at Durham high on the list. Down at Baton Rouge Louisiana State tackles a Rice eleven of unknown strength. The Pacific Coast offers slim fare tomorrow, with only two contests which might be classed as major schedules. California entertains Southern California, and U. C. L. A. is host to college of Pacific in these rivalries.

GAMES IN MIDWEST
Evanston, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Although Otto Graham completed 20 out of 29 passes for a Western Conference football record against Michigan last year, the most marked man on the field Saturday when the Wolverines again clash with Northwestern probably will be Herman Frickey.

Twice Frickey has proven a nemesis to Michigan. Before he was transferred to Northwestern as a naval V-12 student this year, he accounted for touchdowns which gave Minnesota victories over the Wolverines in 1941 and 1942.

The first time he snagged a long pass from Bruce Smith for a score which lifted the Gophers to a 7-0 decision. Last year his touchdown in the third quarter clinched a 16-14 triumph.

Although Frickey now is at Northwestern and not Minnesota, and although he will be meeting his Gopher buddy, Bill Daley, plus at least four Wisconsin players—Michigan is still Michigan as far as he is concerned, and he would like nothing better than to contribute to a Wolverine defeat for the third time.

However, Michigan is rated at least 14 points better than the Wildcats. Its line held Camp Grant and Western Michigan to an aggregate 81 yards by rushing, while its backfield of Daley, Elroy, Bob Wiese and Paul White was accounting for almost 75 per cent of the team's total rushing gain of 527 yards against the two opponents.

Other Ex-Gophers Ready
Northwestern will start Frickey and two other ex-Gophers, quarterback Jerry Carle and end Herb Hein, and possibly two others—end Larry Halenkamp and tackle Ed Bush.

Carle and Frickey have been on the receiving end of Graham's passes much of the time in practices and may be featured in the overhead attack which appears to be the Wildcat's best hope of getting in a knockout blow. Carle took a 22-yard toss from Graham and darted 10 more yards for a touchdown last week which gave Northwestern a 14-6 win over Indiana in its 1943 debut. The Wildcats could make only 36 yards along the ground against the young Hoosiers.

Georgia Tech at Notre Dame—if the Irish can get by the "Ramblin' Wreck," and most observers believe they can with a bit of a touchdown to spare, they will merit a place among the nation's best teams. Georgia Tech and its razzle-dazzle ground by veteran coach Bill Alexander, beat Frank Leahy's lads 19-6 last year and most of the fellows who did that job are back.

Illinois at Purdue—with impressive wins over Great Lakes and Marquette, the Boilermakers may launch their Western Conference campaign in search of at least a share of the title. Their lineup bristles with six former Illinois regulars.

Sailors' Power Increases
Pittsburgh at Great Lakes—Clark Slaughter, trying to instill confidence in his freshmen after that 41-0 pasting by Notre Dame, seems in for another beating—although perhaps not that bad. The Bluejackets are growing in power, especially since Steve Lach, formerly of Duke and the Chicago Cardinals, is in the backfield.

Wisconsin at Iowa—The Badgers' only veteran from 1942, Len Calligaro, is ineligible for the game, giving Iowa an edge. The two green teams are fairly well matched, however, with the Hawkeyes feeling proud after holding Great Lakes to a 21-7 victory and the Badgers likewise buoyed after losing only 10-7 on a last minute field goal to Camp Grant.

Iowa Seahawks at Iowa State—The officers, mostly former pros, will not appear for the Seahawks. The cadet contingent, however, includes Frank Mazzinicki, the ex-Chicago Bear, Bus Merces and Jimmy Smith.

Nebraska at Minnesota—Boistered by the return of Paul Suttler, who was injured and tackled Bill Aldworth, the Gophers should find much trouble notching their second successive victory over a Big Six rival.

Missouri at Ohio State—The Buckeyes were swept aside by the Seahawks, but being rated one of the best civilian teams in the Big Ten, they should be ready to grab their first victory. Minnesota whipped Missouri 26-13, so this game should afford a measuring stick between the Gophers and Buckeyes.

Wabash at Indiana—The Hoosiers' freshman star, Bob Hoernschmeyer, has a bruised leg and will be used sparingly. Coach Bo McMillin should have a chance to see what his reserves will do.

Turns to Psychology

St. Louis, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Bill the Kid Southworth, the master baseball strategist, has turned to psychology to fire the spirit of

The players had quickly dressed after last night's game with the New York Giants and the club house was deserted with the exception of Southworth and his two trusty aides, coaches Clyde "Buz" Wares and Mike Gonzales, the fiery Cuban.

"I hated to see it, but there's been a terrific let down since we clinched the pennant. I presume it's natural, but it shouldn't be. I want to hustle all the time, winning or losing. If we hustle, we can win. I want those boys to keep their spirit up so we'll be ready to tear into the Yankees in New York next Tuesday. My fondest desire is to beat them again—four straight if possible."

Attitude Must Change
Southworth feared the Cardinals, clinching the pennant early, and with nothing at stake thereafter in the day-to-day games, would play carelessly, without spirit. At clubhouse pep talks, Southworth told his players he wanted them to win by the widest margin in National League history. If it couldn't be an all-time record, then a modern one would do. Finally, he expressed a desire to win as many games as the Cardinals of 1942 did. That was 106.

Today they had chalked up 102 victories, with only three games remaining, but they displayed no terrific fire and dash in their recent games that would terrify any Yankee follower. However, Southworth is convinced this attitude will be shaken when they board a train for New York City at 5:30 p. m. Sunday.

"They'd better be hopped up to play their hearts out, or they'll be in for something," he said.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—

Preparations are under way to hold the 19th east-west football game at San Francisco New Year's Day, but the trick will be to find 44 players who don't have to be back in the campus Navy in 48 hours. The coaches say it can be done. Caught right in the middle, the local baseball scribes who handled World Series reservations won't say whether the demand this year is larger or smaller than they could handle.

"If we say more," one explained, "somebody in Washington might get excited; if we say less, the newspapermen we turned down would get excited." Strictly unofficial watchword of the Rangers hockey club this year is: "We can't be any worse than the New York Giants".

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE
In case you're wondering how the scalpers manage to get World Series tickets, Jackie Farrell reports that the only pasteboards mailed before yesterday went to out-of-town applicants, so some must have bounced back. Harry Mahnken, who was "promoted" from the 150-pound squad to coach the Princeton varsity, re-less than ever to start on but still won.

Billy Southworth, Cardinals—Smal, affable and boyish looking. When you meet him you don't wonder that his players run their legs off trying to win for him. Played for the Cards when they beat the Yankees in 1926; managed the club for a few months in 1929, then went back for a fresh start at Rochester. Returned in mid-season, 1940, and so far has piloted his team to two pennants and one world championship.

(Now, if you've digested all this information, you pick 'em; Hugh won't.)

Joe McCarthy, Yankees—Square-hewn, hard-to-know sort of guy; runs his team like a business and it usually means business. There's no questioning his ability as a manager, since he's won eight American League championships, one National League and two American Association. This year apparently was final proof because he had less than ever to start on but still won.

"Behind the Steel Wall"

Presenting the Most Up to Date Picture of Inside Germany

By EDWIN SHANKE

Stockholm—(AP)—Secret enemies of the German Nazi regime are at work even in the highest positions of the various party organizations, including the Hitler youth, Arvid Fredborg, Swedish newspaperman, says in his new book, "Behind the Steel Wall".

Illegal radio senders play an important role in this increasingly active opposition.

Some of them probably protected by German military authorities because otherwise they hardly could continue their activities for months and years, Fredborg says, basing his conclusions on work and residence in Germany from February, 1941, to June, 1943.

In examining opposition to the Nazi movement one must treat of resistance in Germany and Austria as well as reckon with active political opposition and with institutions which have political importance without being actively engaged in politics.

German opposition against Nazism consists roughly of four main groups, Fredborg says, going on to outline the general situation.

The monarchists are very strong, but handicapped because they are without a pretender, since members of the house of Hohenzollern and other Protestant princes do not seem to be considered seriously.

Bavaria is in a separate position because the feeling for the House of Wittelsbach is very strong and the Bavarian crown prince with his son is in Hungary and therefore not under the threat of the Gestapo.

In Germany proper, monarchism has its strongest supporters among employers, peasants and the smaller middleclass bureaucracy.

The liberals have no decided position on the question of state form. In most cases they are split on whether the fourth reich shall be a united national liberal Germany governed from Berlin or a federative Germany.

The liberal group comprises mainly important sections of the middle class in cities and a great many intellectuals.

The social Democrats form a strong group among the workers, but the Nazis have been able to cripple it more than other groups, as its Jews have disappeared and its other leaders have become isolated and have lost every possibility of participating in politics.

Communist leaders are, among those who want a total social and economic revolution. They are greatly aided by the fact that hundreds of thousands of persons have lost everything by air attacks or have been driven to desperation by the hard police regime.

As a matter of fact there is great danger that anarchy can break out in Germany. The Communists have adapted themselves to the political forms of the third reich. They have organized and carried out intensive propaganda which is camouflaged as factual criticism of the Nazi system.

Active resistance must work under great difficulties. A great part of the resistance is helped through sabotage in the leading circles. The opposition has its men in most of the secret party institutions. Many Nazis are trying to buy their future existence by serving the opposition.

The opposition has learned how to divide the sheep from the goats. One opposition leader said they are going to put a questionnaire before everyone with these words "were you in a concentration camp? If not, why not?"

Hold Everything

"I know it's dirty, dear, but you know what the laundry situation is!"

tion is against nazism. The author has met social Democrats who are convinced monarchists, and monarchism was very strong in Austria. Public opinion is now more favorable toward Archduke Otto of Hapsburg than formerly.

Most Austrians seemed to believe that the restoration of the Danubian monarchy under the House of Hapsburg is the only possible framework which could hold the Danubian nations together.

The majority of the German people have turned their backs to the Nazi party. The misuse of power by the party and widespread corruption has aroused the bitterest feelings. There are three factors of direct political significance which are likely to survive the Nazis—the church, high finance, and the army.

In the fight for freedom of conscience the clergy, especially the Catholic church, has taken the lead.

Washington

By James Thrasher
Telegraph Special Service

Smoke from the barrage of criticism fired at the Office of War Information has been so thick as almost to obscure one of the agency's biggest, best-done and most important jobs. That is the co-ordination and direction of the many campaigns designed to tell the civilian where his patriotic efforts are most needed, and how best to use them.

OWI's Office of Program co-ordination acts as a middleman between government agencies, which need voluntary civilian help in countless matters, and the public, which is generally willing to help if it only knows the what-why-how-and-when of it. So today we are buying war bonds, canning home-grown fruits and vegetables, salvaging fat, shunning the black market, sharing our car, taking war industry jobs, buttoning our lip, and a lot of other things, not only because we're glad to but because OWI told us of the necessity.

This information program is unquestionably the biggest advertising and publicity job that the country has ever seen. And it is being put over because OWI has, in addition to wise direction, the hearty and enthusiastic assistance of every informational medium in the country.

The press, radio, motion pictures, magazines, the advertising agencies, and of course the advertisers, have given invaluable voluntary co-operation. This is rather surprising, for a not inconsiderable segment of business doesn't like OWI or OPA or WPB or the way the administration generally is running the war on the home front. But the OWI program people report that reluctance is almost non-existent, and that the remark they hear most often from business is, "How else can we help?"

Their help begins after the spadework on a campaign is done. Each campaign (or "information program," as OWI prefers to call it) begins with the request from some agency for assistance—collection, conservation, or some other civilian activity.

OWI first has to know the identity and nature of the problem and what's to be done about, before it can pass along the information. So it asks the agency for a detailed memorandum. This is expanded by OWI researchers and writers into a "campaign platform."

It's a complicated job. OWI

may have as many as 40 campaigns going on at once. Each agency wants everything done immediately—even though occasionally the agency can't agree on a policy for the campaign, and sometimes is not prepared to follow through with its own part after the civilians' job is done.

Some time before or just after the media conference, the War Advertising Council is called in. This is a volunteer, non-profit organization made up of representatives of the country's leading advertisers, advertising agencies, and advertising medium firms.

It has a skeleton staff of paid workers who get their money from a chipped-in fund from Council members. But the majority of the work is done for free.

The Council appoints a "task force" of co-ordinators and copywriters for each campaign. They think up advertising to match the campaign's central theme or slogan (usually created by OWI) and, on all major campaigns, send out so-called formula folders, from which advertisers may adapt for their own use.

FREE ADVERTISING

The patriotic campaign advertising you see in your newspaper or magazine may have got there at the suggestion of the publisher, the advertiser, or even the services that manufacture materials for printing them. But it added up to a conservatively estimated $2,000,000 worth of free advertising space from the government in the past year.

It is true, and it is also fair, that this sum is deductible from the advertisers' income tax, but that fact is obviously not the only reason for the ads. To match this contribution, 428 magazines have pledged OWI a free page of advertising each month. And the country's newspapers have supplemented advertising with columns of free publicity for various campaigns whose value can't be measured.

All down the line, from intelligent planning through volunteer assistance to public response, OWI's information program is

State Government Expenses Drop, Tax Federation Reports

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1—(AP)—Illinois' governmental expenditures totaled $226,765,760 during the fiscal year ended June 30, a drop of $5,753,601 from the 1941-42 total, the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois reported today. These figures do not include trust funds, such as the unemployment compensation fund. Emergency relief expenditures registered the largest decrease, one of the best home-front accomplishments to date.

falling $11,495,476. Disbursements for highway purposes remained but little changed at $45,530,518. And general revenue fund payments increased $4,317,072 to $84,859,542.

The latter increase resulted chiefly from higher state institutions operation costs and expanding old age pension and aid to welfare program expenses independent children programs, the federation said in a statement. The state's share of these two increased more than $5,000,000.

Receipts Decline

Receipts, excluding all trust funds but including federal grants not in trust, were $257,642,165 for the last fiscal year, a decline of $16,172,269 from the previous year.

"This decline was considerably less than anticipated, however, since budget estimates placed the probable decrease at a much larger figure," Thomas E. Fiske, executive secretary of the federation, said today.

The balance in the general revenue fund alone gained an additional $25,818,153 during the past year, he added. This fund had a surplus of $65,241,490 on June 30. By Aug. 31 the surplus had increased to $73,294,143.

Hollywood News

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

Edward G. Robinson, almost as famous an art collector as he is an actor, was chatting with Lynn Bari between scenes of "Tampico."

"Have you ever had a portrait painted of yourself?" Lynn asked.

"No," replied Robinson. "I collect paintings—not gargoyles!"

A reporter was interviewing Laird Cregar, who is playing Jack the Ripper in a new movie titled "The Lodger."

"Just what do you expect 'The Lodger' to do for you, Mr. Cregar?" inquired the reporter.

"I expect it to lift me from a famous obscurity," said Laird, "to an obscure fame."

A member of the Universal studio publicity department asked Jeanette MacDonald if she had any reducing exercises.

"Yes," she said. "I move my head firmly from side to side every time the dessert goes around."

When Joan Fontaine and Orson Welles were working in "Jane Eyre," Orson was worried because he had to make a scene in which the bed in which he was sleeping suddenly caught fire. The cameras started to turn. Flames leaped.

"Hey, how will I know when to jump?" shouted the boy genius. "Jump when you smell burning hair, Orson, said Joan."

PURE PATRIOTISM
While lunching at a Hollywood cafe, Jean Brooks overheard a soldier at a nearby table mutter as an under-fed looking actor passed by. "I wonder why he's not in the Army?" said the soldier.

"What!" said his soldier companion, glancing disdainfully at the actor's emaciated contours.

"with a war going on?"

For an eerie scene in "Curse of the Cat People," the offstage howling of a wolf was needed. Could someone imitate a wolf, please, asked the director.

"I can," said Simone Simon, giving a low, underslung whistle.

The publicity department asked Director John Brahm for a short resume of his life. "Not a long harangue," they said, "a very brief biography will do."

Brahm's eyes twinkled as he wrote: "I was born. I became a young man. Came World War I. I became a soldier. Came Armistice. I became a civilian. Came Beauty. I became a married man. Came Trouble. I became a divorced man. Came Foolish Impulse. I repeated the whole marriage-divorce routine again. Then came Hitler. Then came Hollywood."

NOT INTERESTED
Despite Adolf Hitler's personal invitation to make films in Germany, Peter Lorre left for the United States just three days before Hitler came to power in 1933. He had just played the murderer in the world-famed film, "M." In his reply to Hitler, Lorre said, "Thank you, but I think Germany has room for only one mass murderer of my ability and yours."

Johnny Mack Brown dreads going to the dentist, too. Mrs. Brown asked him to take son, Lachlan, the other day. At the dentist's office, Johnny said, "Hop up in the chair, son, and be a brave boy."

"Ditto, dad," grinned Lachlan. "I'm the decoy, YOU'RE the one who has the appointment!"

Deaths in Accidents at Home More Than on Global Battlefields

Chicago, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Accidents on the nation's home front, since Pearl Harbor, have caused more deaths than the number of American casualties on all battle fronts, the National Safety Council said today.

Since Dec. 7, 1941, accidental deaths to wartime workers, on and off the job, totaled 80,000, with seven million injured, the council said. It reported casualties to the U. S. armed forces included some 20,000 dead, 28,000 wounded and 32,000 missing.

"In the face of this situation, it is evident that safety still has a big job to do before it carries out its wartime assignment from President Roosevelt to reduce accidents that delay victory," said the council's executive vice president, Ned H. Dearborn.

FUNNY BUSINESS

"That former window trimmer rings in his dummy every time we have chicken!"

"OLD friends are best remembered" was certainly true the day of the opening of the Woolworth store in Dixon about a month ago. Or maybe it was the fact that the Scott store had burned a week before and there was a real shortage of that type of goods in the community. However the most probable cause for the crowds that thronged the store on the opening days was the same careful planning of the opening which had been practiced in almost 3,000 new stores prior to this one.

IF YOU would like a bit of fascinating reading about this subject sometime stop in at the library and ask for the book, "Five and Ten" by John K. Winkler. It is a popularly written biography of Frank Woolworth, who was the real founder of the store devoted entirely to the more inexpensive articles. In fact, until along in the early thirties nearly fifteen years after the founder died, was the first time that any article had sold for over a dime!

FRANK was born in 1852 on his father's farm in Vermont and worked there until he was 21 when his younger brother Charles became old enough to help with the work and it was deemed time for the older brother to leave home and make his own living by working for one of the neighbors. Farm work had become more and more detestable to Frank as the years had gone by and he begged of his parents to give him a chance to go to the town of Watertown and try to find a place in some merchant's store. Times were hard and the untrained country boy hunted long before he found an opening and then he had to work for three months for nothing in order to learn the business.

FROM then on he worked for various wages ranging from $3.50 to $10 a week! Finally the "five cent" craze struck the town and the store where he was employed opened a five-cent counter on the day the county fair opened in town. The result was amazing—long before night the counter was empty. And so the idea was born in the mind of the future Dime King. The five-cent fad did not last as such because of the small variety of things which could be sold for a profit at a nickel.

FROM that time on Frank Woolworth bent all of his energies in one direction—to have a store of his own where only five-cent articles were sold. He looked about for a suitable town and decided on Utica. Here for a time he made a success but soon business dropped and he was forced to close out. The location was not at a strategic place in town and trading in Utica was definitely slack at that time.

SO, UNDAUNTED he looked around for another town and just six months after he went to Utica he opened a new store in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. This became the first five and ten-cent store for Woolworth realized that a ten-cent line must be added also to make a success. Thus on June 21, 1879, was laid the foundation for a business which was to be figured in the millions! This store had a 14-foot frontage and sold the amazing amount of $127.65 on the opening day.

AFTER some other failures he launched a store at Scranton, and that has become the second oldest of his vast chain. From then on he carefully picked helpers as managers for his stores and he realized that his attention must be turned to the buying end. Prices were vastly higher in those early days when orders were small. He also ventured into new fields—for example, candy was selling for 25 cents to $1 a pound and Woolworth determined that he should sell it for 5 cents a quarter pound. Candy manufacturers were agast and Woolworth met with rebuff until he finally found a small candy kitchen on Broadway where the owner agreed to try. Managers were frantic when they found they were to be expected to handle "cheap" perishable goods. Little did they think that it would become one of their most profitable lines and that one day the stores would be selling some 250,000,000 pounds of candy a year!

ABOUT this time Woolworth invaded the European markets and from then on he could outbid nearly all of his competitors because of the volume of his business. If manufacturers did not make what he wanted he counseled with them and gave them the benefit of his wide experience and often set them up in a line which made them vast profits.

WOOLWORTH established stores in England and on the continent. The English group has been tremendously profitable. Those on the continent have been "taken over" by the war lords and profits are all remaining in axis coffers. Woolworth's declining years were spent amid luxurious surroundings at New York and in Europe. Several times during his life his health broke because of untiring efforts turned to his company and because he disliked exercise and he overindulged in soft rich food which he loved. His death occurred in 1919, but he left behind him a well incorporated company which continued after his death along the same general lines which he instituted forty years before.

Spud Chandler of Yankees Shows He Is Ready for Duty

BY TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Spud Chandler, 26-game winner for the New York Yankees, is in top form for his expected three starting assignments against the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series—the first, fourth and seventh game, if necessary.

The ace right hander twirled three hitless innings against the Chicago White Sox yesterday in his final tuneup. His brief appearance lowered his earned run average for the season to 1.67, the best in the American League since 1919.

That the White Sox landed on Bill Zuber for an 8 to 3 victory after Chandler's departure was important only to the Sox who are putting on a great drive to oust Cleveland from third place. The triumph—No. 11 of the season for southpaw Edgar Smith—was the Sox's 13th success in 16 starts and put them within one percentage point of the Indians.

The Indians' scheduled night game with Washington was cancelled because of the weather.

Howie Krist Ready
Howie Krist of the Cardinals also served notice he is ready as a possible World Series starter by shutting out the New York Giants, 1 to 0, on six hits in a night game at St. Louis. The lone run came in the eighth when Lou Klein singled home Harry Walker.

Brooklyn tightened its hold on third place in the National League by capitalizing on a shaky start by Elmer Riddle to beat Cincinnati, 3 to 2, and end the Reds' 10-game winning streak.

A third-inning three-bagger by Billy Herman provided the one-run margin that Kirby Higbe held to the end for his 43th victory. Riddle, trying for his 22nd victory, yielded only one hit in the last six innings, but the damage had been done.

Rookie Andy Pafko, selected as the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast League where he played with Los Angeles, sparked the Chicago Cubs to an uphill 5

Dixon Dukes Meet Hall Township in Loop Tilt Tonight

Game to be Called at 7:30 p. m.; No Preliminary Tilt on Card

By BILL EVANS
Time—7:30 p. m.
Place—High School Field.
No Preliminary Game.
Tonight the Dixon Dukes will go into the game against Hall Township of Spring Valley as the underdogs in the first conference game of the year for the Dukes. Hall has played two games this year and has lost one to St. Bede and have beaten the Princeton Tigers while the Dukes have lost their only scheduled game to West Rockford in a very one-sided tilt.

Although Dixon will be the underdogs in the game, they nevertheless will outweigh Hall by a slight margin in the line as well as in the back field. Quarterback Ronald Sharkey is the lightest man on the regular Hall eleven weighing one hundred and thirty pounds and Fullback Adolph Panizzi is the heaviest, weighing one hundred and seventy-five pounds. Dixon's lightest player on the regular eleven is End Bill Goff who tips the scales at one hundred and forty pounds while Fred Meinke, hard hitting fullback of the Dukes will weigh around one hundred and eighty pounds.

In an effort to plug some of the weak spots in the Duke forward wall, Coach Clem Lindell has switched Dean Nussbaum from guard to left end on defense because of his valuable speed. John Wolbart has been selected to handle the left end while the Dukes are on the offensive. Three regular Duke players will be in there tonight for their first game of the year. John Walters who suffered a wrist injury earlier in the season will be in there to take his regular berth at right half, while Don Fish, returning regular, will take over his assignment at left guard. Earl Burkett a senior this year will take over his job at right guard after being laid up for the Rockford game with a leg injury.

If Dixon should be held to a 4 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves in 12 innings. The Cubs won on Pafko's fourth hit of the game.

Detroit blanked the A's, 6 to 0. A scheduled doubleheader between the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns was cancelled. The Phillies and Pittsburgh had an open date.

standstill. Hall on the ground, the Dukes will take to the air with their powerful passing game with either Roger Bivins or Fred Meinke throwing the ball. Dixon's only touchdown in the Rockford game came as a result of a pass from Bivins to Goff in the end zone. This power play of the Dukes will be brought out for the fans to see and if Dixon should emerge the victor in tonight's game, the passing of the Dukes may be the margin of victory.
